Wooden panels

AHE: Reclaimed wood panel from naturally weather-beaten alder with a surface full of character and colour variation; sound knots, black knots, knot holes and spike knots possible; pith ray, resin pockets, worm holes, shakes, nail holes, bark pockets and mechanical damages possible; colour variation caused by natural weathering of the wood and top layer joints are a valued feature. Top layers are joint free placed but not joint less glued. Panels not cut to size.

Bottom layer C: Hardwood, no special quality specification, not filled.

This panel is also available with sauna-suitable gluing and fulfils the formaldehyde emission requirements in accordance with ÖNORM M 6219-1:2010. Especially when used in saunas, attention must be paid to the possibility of occasional resin leakage and shedding. The maximum permissible temperature of 105°C must not be exceeded, even locally (e.g. near the oven). Where necessary, conformity with ÖNorm M 6219 or the respective other national or local requirements must be ensured by the planning/executing company. Please also refer to our data sheet „Use in saunas“.

The picture above shows an example of the natural character of the wood, this will vary in every panel.
